The English program prepares students for university programs in English and in other disciplines. Studies in the English Department emphasize reading, writing, and critical thinking skills. This program prepares students for careers in occupations such as teaching, law, technical writing and any profession requiring clear communication skills.

Career Options

A degree in English is a good gateway toward a career in teaching, law, technical writing, creative writing, editing/publishing, marketing, and any occupation requiring clear communication skills.

Associate Degrees for Transfer

A.A.-T. in English

The Associate in Arts in English for Transfer degree offers students an opportunity to take courses in literature, composition, and creative writing. This degree prepares students for transfer-level studies in English at a CSU and also readies students for the workforce by emphasizing reading, writing, and critical thinking skills.

The Associate Degree for Transfer (ADT) student completion requirements (as stated in SB1440 law):

1. Completion of 60 semester units or 90 quarter units that are eligible for transfer to the California State University, including both of the following:
   - (A) The Intersegmental General Education Transfer Curriculum (IGETC) or the California State University General Education-Breadth Requirements (CSU GE-Breadth).
   - (B) A minimum of 18 semester units or 27 quarter units in a major or area of emphasis, as determined by the community college district.

2. Obtainment of a minimum grade point average of 2.0.

ADTs also require that students must earn a “C” or better in all courses required for the major or area of emphasis.

Total Units: 19

The Associate in Arts in English for Transfer (AA-T) degree may be obtained by completion of 60 transferable, semester units with a minimum 2.0 GPA, including (a) the major or area of emphasis described in the Required Program, and (b) either the Intersegmental General Education Transfer Curriculum (IGETC) or the California State University General Education-Breadth Requirements.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this program, the student will be able to:

- assess and comprehend texts on a literal level.
- analyze texts on thematic, rhetorical, metaphorical, and symbolic levels.
- discuss authors, forms, and movements of literature in English by employing terms of literary analysis.
- examine literary text in order to demonstrate an understanding of the social and historical context for a work of literature.
- produce and communicate clear and effective arguments and ideas.
- evaluate and integrate research materials to support an original argument by using current Modern Language Association methods and forms.

Associate Degrees

A.A. in English

A major in English offers students an opportunity to take courses in literature, composition, and creative writing. It prepares students for university-level studies in English or other disciplines and also readies students for the workforce by emphasizing reading, writing, and critical thinking skills.

Career Information

A degree in English is a good gateway towards a career in teaching, law, technical writing, creative writing, editing/publishing, marketing, and any occupation requiring clear communication skills.

A.A. in Interdisciplinary Studies: Arts and Humanities

The Interdisciplinary Studies degree is designed for students who seek a greater understanding of disciplines within the arts and humanities. This program is a good choice for students planning on transferring to the California State University or the University of California. The student will be able to satisfy general education requirements and focus on transferable course work that relates to a specific major and/or individual interest.

It is highly recommended that students consult a counselor to determine the classes within each area that will best prepare them for their intended transfer major.

UC transfer credit will be awarded only after the course has been evaluated by the enrolling UC campus. The units completed for this course cannot be counted towards the minimum 60 units required for admissions.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate increased knowledge of educational strategies in the English classroom.
ENGLB 55 Individualized Reading and Writing Skills

This course provides individualized, self-paced instruction of reading and writing skills. Students meet with an instructor for diagnosis of reading and writing needs, and an agreed-upon prescription is determined. Students are awarded units based on successful completion of assigned work, required time, and conferences with their lab instructor. Students are highly encouraged to enroll for one-half unit but may earn up to one unit per semester by completing 27 hours of work for each half unit. This course may be taken for a maximum of 2 units over multiple semesters, with each course constructed to assist students in their needs for that semester. The course is designed for students enrolled in a reading or writing course, but is open to any students who wish to work on their individual reading and writing skills for college. Students may register until the end of the ninth week of the semester and as space allows. The course is graded on a Pass/No Pass basis.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate reading and vocabulary skills by following a diagnostic prescriptive methodology.
- build vocabulary base and employ vocabulary development techniques.
- demonstrate literal and inferential comprehension.
- demonstrate general reading abilities that will lead to success in college-level reading tasks.
- evaluate their writing to identify the elements and concepts that they must address in assigned reading and writing.
- evaluate their writing projects in terms of main ideas, development, organization, sentence structure, and grammar.
- demonstrate and apply knowledge of the writing process to different types of written assignments.

ENGLT 380 Introduction to Shakespeare

Units: 3
Hours: 54 hours LEC
Prerequisite: ENGWR 101 with a grade of “C” or better, or placement through the assessment process.
Transferable: CSU; UC
“All the world’s a stage, and all the men and women merely players.” This course will guide the student through interpretation of several of Shakespeare’s most popular plays and sonnets by taking a close look at his language, themes, and values to illustrate Shakespeare’s relevance in today’s world. By bringing their own perspectives to the texts, students will appreciate the vitality and universality of Shakespeare’s works.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- recognize and identify primary characters and thematic elements in plays and sonnets of Shakespeare.
- discuss the role of Elizabethan culture and politics in Shakespearean drama.
- explicate passages from Shakespeare’s plays and sonnets to uncover meaning and guide interpretation.
- define the major dramatic modes (comedy, tragedy, etc.), relating them to Shakespeare’s plays.
- evaluate Shakespearean texts in terms of both Elizabethan and contemporary theatrical approaches.
- apply contemporary methods of literary analysis and criticism to the works of Shakespeare.

ENGLT 392 Science Fiction and Fantasy

This course introduces students to significant works in science fiction and fantasy literature. Students will explore connections between the literature and concerns about social, ethical, and scientific developments or trends. Authors may include Octavia Butler, William Gibson, Aldous Huxley, Ursula LeGuin, Neal Stephenson, J.R.R. Tolkien, and Kurt Vonnegut.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- critically analyze literary Science Fiction and Fantasy texts.
- compare authors, texts, and themes within Science Fiction and Fantasy.
- produce well-written literary analyses.
- draw connections between literary Science Fiction and Fantasy texts and larger social, ethical, or scientific issues.

ENGLT 400 Introduction to Film

This course explores the artistic, business, and social elements of modern film. It examines the elements that go into making films: acting, directing, cinematography, writing, and editing. It investigates the techniques used to manipulate the audience into fear, laughter, and sadness and compares the commercial box office hit and “movie star” to enduring artistic films and actors. This class will view and analyze films to evaluate filmmaking techniques and the impact of films and the movie business on society. This course is cross-listed with TAFILM 300. It may be taken only once for credit as TAFILM 300 or as ENGLT 400, but not both.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- analyze film as a mode of artistic expression and communication.
- analyze cinema’s place within a framework of modern culture.
- demonstrate development of aesthetic and perceptual skills to appreciate works of film as explorations of human experience.
- describe technical, artistic, and theoretical elements of cinema.
- analyze and evaluate film in terms of aesthetic and critical factors: technical elements, style, form, context, etc.
- construct criteria for critical approaches to films.
- demonstrate a critical approach to film through written and oral film critiques and/or projects.

ENGLT 401 Women in Film and Literature

This course is cross-listed with TAFILM 300. It may be taken only once for credit as TAFILM 300 or as ENGLT 400, but not both.
From its earliest days, Hollywood has played an important role in shaping and reflecting cultural assumptions, myths, and fears. This course examines the underlying messages about race and gender in Hollywood's portrayal of women. The course also compares and contrasts representation of different groups of women, including minority and marginalized, in independent and experimental films. In addition to viewing a variety of film genres, the reading assignments include works of fiction, poetry, and essays from sociology, psychology, and critical theory.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- analyze film and literature and recognize their power to shape reality in both positive and negative ways.
- identify a variety of film and literature genres and the representation of women within those conventions.
- construct images of women from an historical perspective – from the times that produced class literature, to the early years of cinema, to World War II, to the women’s movement in the 70’s, to post-feminism.
- evaluate the historical exclusion and representation of marginalized and/or minority women in film.
- compare and contrast the depiction of minority and marginalized women in both film and literature.
- identify and evaluate the ways in which filmmakers “reinterpret” and modify literary works to fit Hollywood myths.

ENGLT 403 Film Adaptations

This course examines the process, pitfalls, and successes of adapting literary, stage, and previous film material into films. The course will discuss faithful and unfaithful adaptations, reading the original texts and viewing the films with an awareness of their historical and cultural contexts. The course analyzes intention, creative distinctions, and the limits and strengths of each medium.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- identify and apply basic terminology from literary studies and film studies.
- distinguish between the strengths and weaknesses inherent in the genres of short story, novel, drama, and film.
- analyze differences between genres and between media.
- construct criteria for judging adaptations.
- evaluate films based on course concepts.
- evaluate both literature and film in cultural context, as cultural and artistic expressions of people in their historical and social moments.
- demonstrate an understanding of the historical context for each work studied.

ENGLT 404 Documentary Film Studies

In this course, students view, discuss, and analyze documentary films. Students will learn about the history of documentary films, viewing several classics. The course develops a vocabulary of film terminology and helps students to be able view documentaries aesthetically as well as for their content. Documentaries are analyzed as artistic expressions that develop out of their historical and cultural contexts. Students will view and discuss foreign language documentaries, contemporary box office hits, and independent film documentaries.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- identify and recognize important documentary films and filmmakers of the past and contemporary documentary filmmakers.
- analyze films as texts, interpreting and studying the films themselves.
- classify documentary films according to generally accepted categories.
- define and apply the basic terminology of film.
- analyze documentary films both for their artistic expression and for their content.
- interpret documentary films in their social, historical, and cultural context.
- research basic information on films and directors.
- develop aesthetic judgments and understandings of documentary films.
ENGLT 480 World Literature: Antiquity to the Early Modern World - Honors

This course is a comparative study of works that have made important contributions to world literature. Students learn to recognize and explain developmental stages and important themes in representative works written from antiquity to the early modern period and to analyze literary expressions of values, ideas, and multicultural issues typical of major world cultures. ENGRD 10 Basic Reading Skill Development

Units: 3
Hours: 54 hours LEC
Prerequisite: None.
Corequisite: ENGLB 55
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This course provides competency-based instruction for improving literal comprehension, vocabulary development, and dictionary skills.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- build a vocabulary base.
- employ vocabulary development techniques and strategies such as context clues, dictionary skills, and vocabulary study skills.
- identify stated main ideas in paragraphs.
- identify major and minor supporting details in paragraphs.
- develop beginning inferential skills in determining implied main ideas in paragraphs.
- recognize patterns of organization in nonfiction texts.

ENGRD 11 Reading Skill Development

Units: 3
Hours: 54 hours LEC
Prerequisite: ENGRD 10 with a grade of "C" or better, or placement through the assessment process.
Corequisite: ENGLB 55
Advisory: ENGWR 51 with a "C" or better
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This course provides competency and strategy-based instruction for improving skills basic to all reading. It involves intensive work with literal comprehension, beginning inferential comprehension, vocabulary development, and study skills, including practice with various kinds of reading materials. Completion of ENGLB 55 may be recommended by the instructor.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- expand his/her vocabulary base and employ vocabulary development techniques.
- identify stated main ideas in paragraphs.
- determine implied main ideas in paragraphs.
- identify major and minor details in paragraphs.
- make accurate inferences and draw logical conclusions in nonfiction texts.
ENGRD 110 Comprehension Strategies and Vocabulary Development For College

This course is designed to develop efficient reading skills and strategies required of community college students. Areas of concentration include vocabulary development, literal and inferential comprehension skills, and study strategies for reading a variety of college-level texts: fiction and non-fiction essays and articles, novels, and textbooks. ENGLB 55 may be recommended by the instructor for students who need more reading skill practice.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- understand and utilize vocabulary required for comprehending texts.
- identify, explain, and analyze the stated main idea of a reading selection.
- understand and interpret the implied main idea of a reading selection.
- identify, explain, and analyze the supporting details of a reading selection.
- understand and interpret inferences required for comprehending texts.
- identify, explain, and analyze the stated thesis in a longer reading selection.
- apply reading comprehension skills to articulate a thesis paraphrase of a longer reading selection.
- recognize and explain patterns of organization typically found in college-level texts.
- identify, explain, and analyze facts and opinions in a reading selection.
- recognize and interpret the author’s purpose and tone in a reading selection.
- employ a variety of study skills (e.g., mapping, paraphrasing, outlining, annotating, etc.) required for understanding college-level texts.

ENGRD 118 Accelerated College Reading

This course provides intensive instruction and practice in critical reading and thinking skills necessary for success in ENGRD 310. Reading assignments are connected to assignments in ENGRD 310, so that the student might succeed at that course.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- understand and employ vocabulary required for comprehending college-level texts.
- review, identify, and explain the stated main idea of a reading selection.
- understand and interpret the implied main idea of a reading selection.
- identify, explain, and analyze the supporting details of a reading selection.
- paraphrase the thesis of a longer reading selection.
- recognize and explain patterns of organization typically found in college-level texts.
- identify, explain, and analyze facts and opinions in a reading selection.
- recognize and interpret the author’s purpose and tone in a reading selection.
- employ a variety of study skills (e.g., mapping, paraphrasing, outlining, annotating, etc.) required for understanding college-level texts.
- practice critical reading to determine propaganda techniques and logical fallacies.

ENGRD 208 Reading for Academic Achievement

This course focuses on the development of reading skills and strategies for reading a variety of college-level texts. It is designed to help students improve their reading comprehension and critical thinking skills. The course includes lectures, discussions, and hands-on activities to enhance students' abilities to analyze, interpret, and critique written material. Students will learn various reading strategies and techniques to enhance their comprehension and critical thinking skills.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- understand and employ vocabulary required for comprehending college-level texts.
- review, identify, and explain the stated main idea of a reading selection.
- understand and interpret the implied main idea of a reading selection.
- identify, explain, and analyze the supporting details of a reading selection.
- paraphrase the thesis of a longer reading selection.
- recognize and explain patterns of organization typically found in college-level texts.
- identify, explain, and analyze facts and opinions in a reading selection.
- recognize and interpret the author’s purpose and tone in a reading selection.
- employ a variety of study skills (e.g., mapping, paraphrasing, outlining, annotating, etc.) required for understanding college-level texts.
- practice critical reading to determine propaganda techniques and logical fallacies.
This course covers the theory and practice of analytical and speed reading skills and strategies required for proficient and effective reading of college level materials. The class focuses on the following: scaffolding of proficient comprehension skills; analytical evaluation of college level essays; critical reading skills for college level textbooks; using critical reading and thinking skills when reading on the Internet and doing research; vocabulary development; building of a flexible reading rate. These skills will be developed through application in varied reading materials. One or more additional hours in the Reading Lab may be recommended. This course is not open to students who have completed ENGRD 310 or ENGRD 312.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- analyze essays or other printed material as well as electronic materials and apply such analytical reasoning skills as recognizing organizational patterns.
- evaluate use of support, and assess relevancy and adequacy of information.
- evaluate college level reading materials, demonstrating various individual reading skills such as making inferences and interpreting figurative language.
- utilize college level vocabulary.
- apply effective and efficient reading rates for college level materials and use flexibility in assessing an appropriate reading speed for varied materials.

Prerequisite: ENGRD 110 with a grade of "C" or better, or placement through the assessment process.
Transferable: CSU
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This course is designed to refine students’ ability to read, understand, and respond to textbooks in vocational courses such as nursing, aeronautics, and cosmetology, as well as in transfer-level courses such as business, geology, and psychology. Activities emphasize discipline-based vocabulary; reading strategies; critical thinking; interpretation of figures, facts, and data; and reading rates as they relate to academic success. Students may be recommended by the instructor to complete ENGLB 55.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- choose appropriate study skills for various content-area courses including previewing, annotating, paraphrasing, and reviewing.
- evaluate purpose and structure in college textbooks.
- compose written responses to textbook readings.
• employ college-level, discipline-based vocabulary learning strategies.
• analyze and apply appropriate reading rates to college material.
• outline, summarize, and respond to textbook chapters and topics.

ENGRD 315 Reading Across the Disciplines for Content Courses

This course offers reading skills to students as they apply to various content-area courses. Topics include the principles of the reading process, analysis of discipline-specific reading assignments, strategies for retention, and research strategies particular to the chosen discipline. Students should come to the Reading Across the Disciplines (RAD) Center and meet with a RAD staff member before enrolling. This course is graded Pass/No Pass.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

• analyze lectures, readings, assignments, and handouts to meet course requirements.
• synthesize materials from lectures and reading assignments to create appropriate study tools.
• assess the reading process and materials to employ appropriate critical reading strategies.
• identify the purpose for reading.
• choose reading rate and style based on purpose and material.
• utilize college-level, discipline-based vocabulary.
• develop and employ reading strategies for research.

ENGRD 495 Independent Studies in English - Reading

Independent study allows a student or small group of students to work directly with an instructor independent from a structured class or course. The instructor and student(s) typically develop a contract together, outlining the course of study. Variable units enable maximum flexibility in creating this course of study.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

• demonstrate competence in the skills essential to mastery of the major discipline of study that are necessary to accomplish the independent study.
• discuss and outline a proposal of study (that can be accomplished within one semester term) with a supervising instructor qualified within the discipline.
• prepare a written and/or oral report summarizing the results achieved from the independent study.

English - Writing (ENGWR)

ENGWR 51 Developmental Writing

This course focuses on basic writing skills, emphasizing the connection between writing and reading. It offers individualized and group instruction for students who need to improve their ability to write increasingly complex and varied short essays. Each student writes a minimum of 4,000 words divided into at least five essays (at least three of which will be written entirely in class and some of which may be in response to readings). The course includes principles of basic grammar, effective sentence structure, paragraph development, and analysis of and response to reading. Students will read at least one book-length work. Formerly known as ENGWR 50.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

• demonstrate an understanding of the principles of grammar, spelling, capitalization, and punctuation and apply these in written assignments.
• demonstrate correct and varied sentence structure.
• summarize and evaluate readings.
• write competent paragraphs and essays in response to assigned readings.
employ critical thinking skills at the sentence, paragraph, and essay levels.

detect weaknesses or errors in his/her own writing.

ENGWR 52 Developmental Writing Workshop

This basic writing course is designed for students who need intensive instruction in how to write, revise, and edit drafts. Students will write a minimum total of 1,500 words divided among at least six assignments. The course includes principles of basic grammar, spelling, capitalization, punctuation, and sentence structure. This course is graded Pass/No Pass.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- write short, organized essays.
- demonstrate an understanding of the principles of basic grammar, spelling, capitalization, and punctuation.
- compose clear, correct sentences.
- revise and edit drafts.

ENGWR 90 Preparation for English Writing - Success Academy

This course provides an introduction to student learning expectations and the outcomes of higher education. This course has a specific focus on English writing preparation through the implementation of individualized group instruction for students.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate increased readiness for the students' upcoming English Writing course.
- identify areas of further development of skills that will need more focus in the upcoming English Writing course.
- identify an awareness of resources to help with success in the upcoming English Writing course.

ENGWR 101 College Writing

This writing course uses individual and group instruction to help students improve critical thinking and writing skills. Students will be assigned a minimum of 6,000 words including at least two in-class midterms and a departmental final exam. Writing assignments are often based on analysis of readings. The course prepares students for college composition. Formerly known as ENGWR 100.

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- compose fully developed, structured, and unified essays.
- demonstrate knowledge of the writing process through pre-writing, drafting, and revision.
- support opinions and conclusions using appropriate evidence.
- demonstrate ability to use varied sentence structures and types.
- construct sentences with precise and appropriate words.
- examine and evaluate writing for errors.
- apply critical reading and reasoning skills.
- analyze and respond to readings and incorporate the ideas of others into writing.
- summarize short articles accurately and correctly.
- demonstrate competence in basic MLA formatting and in-text citing.

ENGWR 108 Accelerated College Writing
This course provides intensive instruction and practice in the critical thinking and writing skills necessary for success in college composition. Writing assignments are often connected to the students' assignments in ENGWR 300. The course includes the drafting, revision, and editing processes as well as instruction in grammar, mechanics, and usage.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- employ a recursive writing process that includes pre-writing, drafting, revising, and editing.
- compose fully developed, structured, coherent, and unified essays.
- identify and correct sentence errors (especially sentence fragments, comma-splices and run-on sentences, subject-verb disagreement, incorrect verb tense and form, punctuation, pronoun reference and agreement, and capitalization).
- summarize, analyze, and respond to readings.
- incorporate the ideas of others into writing and demonstrate competence in MLA formatting and in-text citing.

ENGWR 110 College Reading and Writing Skills

Units: 4
Hours: 72 hours LEC
Prerequisite: None.
Corequisite: ENGLB 55
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This pre-transfer-level course is designed to prepare students for success in ENGWR 300 and other courses that require writing. Students will read primarily transfer-level non-fiction texts of varying length, and write essays responding to and incorporating these readings. The course will focus on reading and writing fundamentals, such as active reading strategies, writing process, thesis development, paragraph structure, logical support, and sentence awareness. A half-unit Reading and Writing Lab (ENGLB 55) is also required to provide more individualized support.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate comprehension of article or book-length works at the literal and inferential levels.
- modify active reading strategies appropriately for a given reading task.
- utilize pre-writing and revision strategies to write competent, college-appropriate essays in response to assigned readings.
- incorporate readings into writing through the use of summary, quoting, and paraphrase.
- utilize the principles of grammar, spelling, capitalization, and punctuation and apply these in written assignments.

ENGWR 157 University Preparatory Writing

Units: 3
Hours: 54 hours LEC
Prerequisite: None.
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This writing course uses individual and group instruction to help students improve critical thinking and writing skills. Each student writes 6,000 words (approximately five to six essays), including at least two in-class essays and one in-class final exam. Writing assignments are largely based on analysis of readings. This course prepares students for university-level writing courses.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- compose fully developed, structured, and unified essays, support main points using appropriate evidence, and demonstrate knowledge of the writing process through pre-writing, drafting, and revision.
- apply critical reading and reasoning skills through analyzing and responding to readings and incorporating the ideas of others into his or her own writing.
- demonstrate ability to use varied sentence structures and types by constructing sentences with precise and appropriate words.

ENGWR 300 College Composition

Units: 3
Hours: 54 hours LEC
Prerequisite: ENGWR 110 or ENGWR 101 with a grade of "C" or better, concurrent enrollment in ENGWR 108, or placement through the assessment process.
Advisory: ENGRD 310 and LIBR 318 with grades of "C" or better
Transferable: CSU; UC
General Education: AA/AS Area II(a); CSU Area A2; IGETC Area 1A
C-ID: C-ID ENGL 100
Catalog Date: June 1, 2020

This writing course emphasizes reading, writing, and critical thinking skills that are essential for successful completion of a four-year college program. Students write a minimum of 6,500 words divided among 6-8 essays, including at least one research paper and one in-class essay. This course satisfies the writing competency requirement for graduation.
Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- compose effective college-level essays using a variety of rhetorical strategies and applying appropriate citations and formatting standards.
- research, evaluate, critically analyze, and synthesize complex works to support a thesis.
- apply the conventions of standard written English, employing a variety of sentence structures and college-level diction.

ENGWR 301 is an introduction to critical thinking and writing about works in the four major genres of literature: poetry, drama, short story, and novel. In the course, students: 1) further their study and practice in analytical reading and writing; 2) cover principles of logic such as inductive and deductive reasoning, recognizing logical fallacies, and suspending judgment; 3) learn to apply the conventions of literary criticism and to analyze, interpret, and explicate literary works. Students are required to write a minimum of 6,000 words presenting reasoned arguments of literary texts.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- analyze literature through various critical approaches.
- evaluate works of literature by applying literary elements, terms, and theoretical concepts.
- compare and contrast artistic and literary movements across a range of time periods as well as the connections between major literary works.
- think and write critically about literary works in a variety of poetic and narrative forms from several periods and various cultures.
- identify premises, both explicitly and implicitly stated.
- distinguish among facts, inferences, assumptions, and implications.
- recognize fallacious reasoning, including but not limited to the standard critical thinking fallacies, in various critical interpretations of literary works (including the students' own interpretations) and respond to (and correct, if necessary) these fallacies.
- formulate interpretations, conclusions, and judgments based on inferences.
- reason inductively from themes, patterns, and structures to form generalizations.
- reason deductively by recognizing literary and linguistic conventions, whether structural, semantic, or syntactical and draw conclusions about texts based on those conventions.
- assess a variety of perspectives before formulating conclusions.
- propose an argument of interpretation or evaluation (thesis).
- support the thesis with a sufficient number and variety of appropriate examples taking into account alternate and opposing points of view.
- incorporate supporting detail from secondary texts.
- construct logical discourse through order, repetition, and transitional devices.
- use diction appropriate to the audience and the rhetorical purpose of writing.
- use elements of style with increasing complexity (such as absolute phrases or repetition) to achieve coherence.
- demonstrate a knowledge of the four major literary genres (poetry, novel, short story, and drama) including developments and variations within these genres over time.

This course develops composition skills at the advanced level as well as analytical skills through writing, reading, and discussion. It examines methods by which people are persuaded to think, believe, and/or act. It also includes analyzing arguments or expressions of opinions for their validity and soundness and evaluating outside sources. Finally, it focuses on critically assessing, developing, supporting, and effectively expressing opinions on issues. It emphasizes thinking clearly and organizing thought carefully in writing by using principles of logic. This course includes writing a minimum of 6,500 words.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- create well supported, well developed arguments and analyses.
- evaluate various types of arguments, including identifying faulty reasoning and other forms of weak argumentation.
- assess and synthesize online and library database research for use in written and oral arguments.
ENGWR 303 Argumentative Writing and Critical Thinking Through Literature

Through the study of complex literary works in all major genres, this course offers instruction in analytical, critical, and argumentative writing; critical thinking; research strategies; information literacy; and proper documentation. Close reading skills and the aesthetic qualities of literature are also studied. A minimum of 6,000 words of formal writing will be required. Attendance at readings, plays, or films may be required. Online students have the option of watching these online.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- analyze and interpret literary texts with emphasis on literary devices and key elements of major genres.
- evaluate various types of arguments, including identifying faulty reasoning and other forms of weak argumentation.
- compose thesis-driven arguments that suit a variety of rhetorical situations (including literary), effectively synthesize sources, and use MLA documentation.

ENGWR 330 Writing for Publication

This is an introductory course in writing nonfiction for publication. Emphasis will be on developing a saleable article for magazines, newspapers, or online media sources; finding ideas; analyzing publications; writing a query letter; researching and interviewing; and organizing, writing, and illustrating an article. Credit may be awarded for ENGWR 330 or JOUR 340, but not for both.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate writing and marketing skills to successfully write magazine articles and find the most appropriate print or online publications to market them.
- demonstrate ideas with a focus and slant toward a particular print or online publication.
- research sources and develop interview techniques.
- write and edit salable articles for print or online publications.
- analyze both print and online publications for appropriateness and timeliness of proposed articles.

ENGWR 384 Mass Media and Society

This is an interdisciplinary course exploring aspects of communication and the impact of mass media on the individual and society. The survey includes basic communication models, books, magazines, newspapers, recordings, movies, radio, television, advertising, public relations, the Internet, theories of communication, relationships between mass media and business and government, and processes and effects from a social science perspective. Credit may be awarded for only one section of either COMM 351, ENGWR 384, or JOUR 310.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- identify the basic principles of each form of basic communication.
- demonstrate an understanding of mass media and its relationship to the public.
- differentiate among news, opinion, feature writing, and electronic presentations.
- analyze and evaluate each form of media.
- assess the impact of media messages on various audiences.
ENGWR 482 Honors Advanced Composition and Critical Thinking

ENGWR 482 is a course in critical reasoning, reading, and writing requiring a high level of competence in English composition. Students will read, discuss, and analyze complex texts (essay and book-length works) reflecting a variety of cultural, historical, and philosophical perspectives. The course includes inductive and deductive reasoning, analysis of fallacious reasoning, and use of persuasive language. The minimum word requirement of 6,500 words will be divided among at least four formal essays, ranging from 1,000-3,000 words each, two of which will include primary and secondary research and MLA format. This course is taught as a seminar; several group and individual class presentations will be required.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- evaluate arguments and rhetorical strategies and identify logical fallacies in professional and student writing.
- summarize and paraphrase accurately texts of various lengths.
- analyze evidence (facts, statistics, various research) and assess its credibility and accuracy.
- formulate appropriate and effective rhetorical strategies in oral and written presentations.
- create arguments that integrate a variety of texts, properly document support, and demonstrate a sophisticated style and vocabulary reflecting advanced critical thinking skills.

ENGWR 488 Honors College Composition and Research

This course offers the honors student a challenging curriculum that will develop skills in composition, critical thinking, and research. Students write a minimum of 6,500 words divided among at least four to six essays, including a significant research paper and at least one in-class essay. In addition to research assignments, students will read at least one full-length, supplemental text. In order to fulfill the honors requirement, students will complete a significant project and/or classroom presentation. This course was formerly known as ENGWR 480. This course is taught as a seminar; several group and individual class presentations/projects will be required.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- compose transfer level essays that demonstrate competency in organization, development, and unity.
- synthesize multiple outside sources into original essays, demonstrating college competence in critical reading and analysis.
- research using library and online sources and effectively incorporate research into essays.
- exhibit mastery of the conventions of Modern Language Association citations and documentation.
- demonstrate competency in grammar and usage in the writing of transfer level compositions.
- lead in-class discussions and create a significant classroom presentation.

ENGWR 495 Independent Studies in English - Writing

Independent study allows a student or small group of students to work directly with an instructor independent of a structured class or course. The instructor and student(s) typically develop a contract together, outlining the course of study. Variable units enable maximum flexibility in creating this course of study. UC transfer credit will be awarded only after the course has been evaluated by the enrolling UC campus. The units completed for this course cannot be counted towards the minimum 60 units required for admissions.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

- demonstrate improved writing skills
